

^{Or, winds.}

^h The sinful
edificēce meeth
Gods presence.

ⁱ His hypocri-
sie appeareth
in that he hid the cause of his nakednes, &
was the transgression of Gods commandement.

^k His wickednes & lacke of true repentāce appeareth in this y^e he bur-deneth God wth
his faulte, because he had giuē hi^s awife.

^l In stead of confessing her sinne, she increaseth it by accusing the serpent.

^m He asked y^e
reason of Adā
and his wife, because he wolde bring them to repentance, but he asketh not the serpēt, because he wolde she-we him no mercie.

ⁿ As a vile & contemptible
beast, Isa. 65, 35.

^o He chiefly
meaneth Satā,
by whose motion & craft y^e serpent decei-
ued y^e woman.

^p That is, the power of sinne
and death.

^q Satan shal bring Christ &
his members,
but not ouer-
come them.

^r The Lord
comforteth Adām by the promises of the blessed fede, &
also punisheth y^e body for the sinne, which y^e soule shulde
haue bene punished for, y^e
the spirit having conceiued hope of forgiuenes, might liue by faith.

^{1 Cor. 14. 34.}

^s The transgressiō of Gods
comāndement
was the cause
y^e bothe mankinde and all other creatures were subiect to the curse.

^t These are not y^e natural frutes of the earth, but pro-
cede of y^e corruption of flane.

^u Or gaue the knowledge to make the fel-
wes coates.

^x By this descripciō he reprocheth Adā's
miserie, wherinto he was fallen by ambition. y^e Adām deprived of life lost also the signe thereof.

the Lord God walking in the garden in the coole of the day, and the man and his wife hid them selues from the presence of the Lord God among the trees of the garden.

9 But the Lord God called to the man, and said vnto him, Where art thou?

10 Who said, I heard thy voyce in the garden, and was afraied: because I was naked, therefore I hid my self.

11 And he said, Who tolde thee, that thou wast naked? Hast thou eaten of the tre, whereof I comāded thee that thou shuldest not eat in no case?

12 Then the man said, The woman which thou gauest to be with me, she gaue me of the tre, and I did eat.

13 And the Lord God said to the woman, Why hast thou done this? And the womā said, The serpēt beguyled me, and I did eat.

14 ¶ Then the Lord God said to the serpēt, Because thou hast done this, thou art cursed aboue all cattel, and aboue euerie beast of the field: vpon thy belly shalt thou go, and dust shalt thou eat all the dayes of thy life.

15 I wil also put enimitie betwene thee and the womā, & betwene thy sede & her sede. He shal breake thine head, & thou shalt bruise his heele.

16 ¶ Vnto the woman he said, I wil greatly increase thy sorowes, & thy conceptiōs, In sorowe shalt thou bring forth the childrē, and thy desire shal be subiect to thine housband, and he shal rule ouer thee.

17 ¶ Also to Adām he said, Because thou hast obied the voyce of thy wife, and hast eaten of the tre (whereof I comāded thee, saying, Thou shalt not eat of it) cursed is the earth for thy sake: in sorowe shalt thou eat of it all the dayes of thy life.

18 Thornes also, and thystles shal it bring forth to thee, and thou shalt eat the herbe of the field.

19 In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, til thou returne to the earth: for out of it wast thou taken, because thou art dust, and to dust shalt thou returne.

20 (And the man called his wiues name Heuāh; because she was the mother of all liuing)

21 Vnto Adām also and to his wife did the Lord God make coates of skinnes, and clothed them.

¶ And the Lord God said, Beholde, the man is become as one of vs, to knowe good and euil. And now lest he put forth his hand, and take also of the tre of life and eat and liue for euer, 23 Therefore y^e Lord God sent him forth from the garden of Eden, to til the earth, whence he was taken.

24 Thus he cast out man, and at the Eastside of the garden of Eden he set the Cherubims, and the blade of a sworde shaken, to kepe the waye of the tre of life.

CHAP. IIII.

¹ The generaciō of mankinde. ² Káin killeth Hábel.

²³ Lámech a tyrant encourageth his feareful wiues.

²⁶ True religion is restored.

¶ Afterwarde the man knewe Heuāh his wife, which conceiued & bare Káin, & said, I haue obtained a man by y^e Lord. And againe she brought forth his brother Hábel, and Hábel was a keeper of shepe, & Káin was a tiller of the grounde.

¶ And in processe of time it came to passe, that Káin brought an oblation vnto the Lord of the frute of the grounde.

¶ And Hábel also him selfe brought of the first frutes of his shepe, and of the fat of them, and the Lord had respect vnto Hábel, and to his offering,

But vnto Káin and to his offering he had no regarde: wherefore Káin was exceeding wroth, & his countenance fel downe.

¶ Then the Lord said vnto Káin, Why art thou wroth? and why is thy countenance cast downe?

If thou do wel, shalt thou not be accepted? and if thou doest not wel, sinne lieth at the dore: also vnto thee his desire shal be subiect, and thou shalt rule ouer him.

¶ Then Káin spake to Hábel his brother. And when they were in the field, Káin rose vp against Hábel his brother, and slewe him.

¶ Then the Lord said vnto Káin, Where is Hábel thy brother? Who answered, I can not tel. Am I my brothers keeper?

¶ Againē he said, What hast thou done? the voyce of thy brothers blood cryeth vnto me from the grounde.

¶ Now therefore thou art cursed fro the earth, w^{ch} harhe opened her mouth to receiue thy brothers blood from thine hand.

¶ When thou shalt til the grounde, it shal not henceforth yelde vnto thee her strength: a vagabonde and a rennegate shalt thou be in the earth.

¶ Then Káin said to the Lord, My punishment is greater, then I can beare.

¶ Beholde, thou hast cast me out this day from the earth, and from thy face shal I be hid, and shal be a vagabonde and a rennegate in the earth, & whosoever findeth me, shal slaye me.

¶ Then the Lord said vnto him, Douteles whosoever slayeth Káin, he shal be punished seven folde. And y^e Lord set a marke vpon Káin, lest anie man finding him shulde kil him.

¶ Then Káin went out from the presence of the Lord and dwelt in the land of Nod towarde the Eastside of Eden.

because he did punish him so sharply. ^{Or, my sone is greater then thou art pardoned.} ⁿ Nod for the loue he bare to Káin, but to suppress murder.

^o A visible signe of Gods iudgement that others shulde feare.

^a Mans nature, the state of marriage, & Gods blessing were not utterly abolished through sinne, but the quality or condition thereof was changed.

^b That is, according to the Lords promise, as chap. 3. 15. some read, To the Lord, as reioycing for sonne, & she had borne, who me she wolde offer to y^e Lord as the first frutes of her birth.

^c This declareth that the father intru-
ded his child-
rē in y^e knowledge of God,
and also how God gaue the sacrifices to signifie their saluatiō: albeit they were destitute of the sacrament of the tre of life.

^d Because he was an hypocrite and offended onely for an outwarde shew without sinceritie of heart.

^e Bothe thou and thy sacrifice shal be acceptable to me.

^f Sinne shal
still torment thy conscience.

^g The dignitie
of y^e first borne is giuen to Káin ouer Há-
bel.

^{Wisd. 10. 3.}

^{mat. 23. 35.}

^{1 ioh. 3. 12.}

^{iud. 11.}

^h This is the nature of the reprobate whē
they are repro-ued of their hypocrisie, euē
to neglect God
and despise him.

ⁱ God reuen-
geth y^e wrongs
of his Saints,
thogh none co-
plain: for the iniquitie it selfe cryeth for vengeance.

^k The earth
shal be a wit-
nes against thee
which mercifully receiued that blood, w^{ch} thou most cruelly shed.

^l Thou shalt neuer haue
rest for thine heart shal be in continual feare & care.

^m He burden-eth God wth a cruell iudge.