

The Trial of the Seven Bishops. 427

on it, that I am right; it was so declared by all the Judges.

Mr. Soll. Gen. The Puritans presented a Petition to that purpose, and in it they said, If it would not be granted, they would come with a great Number.

Mr. Just. Powel. Ay, there it is.

Mr. Just. Allybone. I tell you, Mr. Sollicitor, the Resolution of the Judges is, That such a Petition is next door to Treason, a very great Misdemeanor.

Mr. Just. Powel. They accompanying it with Threats of the People's being discontented.

Mr. Just. Allybone. As I remember, it is in the second Part of the Folio 35, or 37, where the Resolution of the Judges is, That to frame a Petition to the King to put the Penal Laws in Execution, is next door to Treason; for (say they) no Man ought to intermeddle without Leave of the Government.

Mr. Serj. Pemberton. That was a Petition against the Penal Laws.

Mr. Just. Allybone. Then I am quite mistaken indeed, in case it be so.

Mr. Serj. Trinder. That is not material at all, which it was.

Mr. Pollixfen. They were threatned, unless their Request were granted, several Thousands of the King's Subjects would be discontented.

Mr. Just. Powel. That is the Reason of that Judgment, I affirm it.

Mr. Just. Allybone. But then, I'll tell you, Brother, again, what is said in that Case that you hinted at, and put Mr. Sollicitor in mind of: For any Man to raise a Report that the
