

He heauens also and the erth were fynished, and all the host of them. And in the seuenth daye God ended his worke which he had made. * In the seuenth daye also, he rested from all hys worke which he had made. * And God blessed the seuenth daye, and sanctified it, because in it he had rested from all his worke, which God ordeyned to make.

These are the generacions of the heauens and of the earth when they were created, in the daye, when the Lorde God made the earth and the heauens and euery plant of the felde, before it was in the earth: and euery herbe of the felde, before it grew. For the Lorde God had not caused it to raygne vpon the earth, neither was there a man to tyll the grounde.
And there went vp a myste fro of the earth, and watred the whole face of the grounde.

The Lorde God also * shope man, euen dust from of the grounde, and bryethed into his nassrels the bryeth of lyfe: and Ada was made a lyuing soule. And the Lorde God planted a garden eastwarde from Eden, and there he put man who he had made. Woreouer, out of the grounde made the Lorde God to growe, euery tre that was pleasaut to the sight, and comodious for meate. The tre of lyfe also and the tre of knowledge of good and of euill was in the myddes of the garden. And out of Eden, there went forth a riuer to water the garden. And from thence it was deuyded, and became into foure bea-des. The name of one is * Pison. The same is it that compasseth the whole lande of Hauilah, where there is golde. And the golde of that lande is good. There is also Sbellun, and the onix stone. The name of the second ryuer is, Syhon: the same is it that compasseth the whole lande of Ethiopia. The name of the third ryuer is Hidkel, & it goth towards the east syde of Assiria. And the fourth ryuer is Euphrates.

The Lorde God also toke Adam, and put him into the garden of Eden, that he myght dresse and kepe it. And the Lorde God commaunded Ada, saying: Eating, thou shalt eate of euery tre of the garden. But as touchynge the tre of knowledge of good and euell, thou shalt not eate of it. For in what daye soeuer thou eatest therof, thou shalt dye the death.

And agayne, the Lorde God sayd: * It is not good that Adam shulde be alone. * I will make him an helpe, which maye be present to him. And so out of the grounde shope the Lorde God euery beast of the felde, and euery foule of the ayre, and brought it vnto man, that he myght se howe he wolde call it.
For likewise as man hym selfe named euery liuyng thyng, euen so was the name therof.
When him selfe therfore named the names vnto all catell, and foule of the ayre, and to euery beast of the felde. And for man founde he not an helpe that myght be present with him. The Lorde God also caused a slomber to fall vpon Adam, and he slept. And he toke one of hys ribbes, & closed vp the flesh in stead therof. And the ribbe which the Lorde God had taken from man, * made he a woman, * and brought her vnto man. And man sayde: This is nowe bone of my bones, and fleshe of my fleshe. She shalbe called woman, because she was take out of man. * For this cause shall a man leaue hys father and hys mother, & shalbe ioyned with hys wyfe, and they shall become one flesh: and they were both naked, the man and his wife, and were not ashamed.

The.iiij. Chapter.

The serpent deceaue the woman. The serpent, the woman, and the man are cursed, and dyspauer of paradys. Christ our sauour is promysed.

But the serpent was sotyller then euery beast of the felde, which the Lorde God made. And he sayde vnto the woman: yee, hath the Lorde God sayde: ye shall not eat of euery tre of the garden? And the woman sayde vnto the serpent: we eate of the frute of the tre of the garden: but as for the frute of the tre which is in the myddes of the garden, God hath sayde: ye shall not eate of it, neither shal ye touche it, lest happily ye dye. And the serpent sayde vnto the woman: ye shall not dye the death: but God doth knowe, that the same daye that ye eat therof, your eyes shalbe opened, & ye shalbe euē as goddes, knowing good and euill. And so the woman (seyn-g that the same tre was good to eate, and lusty to the eyes, & that the same tre was pleasaunt to get wisdom) toke of the frute thereof, and dyd eate: and gaue vnto her husband beynge with her, which dyd eate also. And the eyes of them both were opened: and they knewe that they were naked, & they sowed fygge leaues together, and made the selues aperys. And they heard the voyce of the Lorde God walkynge in the garden in the coole of the daye. And Adam & his wyfe hid the selues fro the presence of the Lorde God among the trees of the garden. And the Lorde God called Adam, and sayd vnto hym: where art thou?

thou which sayde: I hearde thy voyce in the garden, & was afrayed, because I was naked, & hyd my selfe. And he sayde: Who tolde the, that thou wast naked? hast thou not eaten of the sametre, concernynge the which I commaunded the, that thou shuldest not eate of it? And Adam sayd: The woman, whom thou gauest to be wyth me, she gaue me of the tree, and I dyd eate.

And the Lorde God sayde vnto the woman: Why hast thou done this? And the woman sayde: yonder serpent begyled me, and I dyd eate. And the Lorde God sayde vnto the serpent: because thou hast done this, thou art cursed aboue all catell, and aboue euery beast of the felde. Upon thy belly shalt thou go, & dust shalt thou eate all the dayes of thy lyfe. I will also put enmitye betwene the & the woman, betwene thy seede and hys seede: the same shall treade downe thy head, and thou shalt treade vpon hys heele.

But vnto the woman he sayde: In multiplieng wyll I multiplie thy sorowe & thy concepyng: In sorowe shalt thou brynge forth chyldren, & thy lust shall pertayne to thy husbunde, & he shall haue the rule of the.
Vnto Adam he sayde: Because thou hast herkened vnto the voyce of thy wyfe, & hast eaten of the tree (concernynge the which I comaunded the, saying: Thou shalt not eate of it) cursed is the ground for thy sake. In sorow shalt thou eate of it all the dayes of thy lyfe. Thorne also & thysle shall it cause to growe vnto the, & thou shalt eate the herbe of the felde. In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eate bread, tyll thou be turned agayne into the grounde, for out of it was thou taken, in as much as thou art dust, & into dust shalt thou be turned agayne.

And Ada called his wyues name: Heua, because she was the mother of all lyuinge. Vnto the same Adam also & to hys wyfe dyd the Lorde God make letheren garmentes, & clothed them. And the Lorde God sayde: Beholde, yonder man hath bene euen as one of vs, that he myght knowe good and euell. And nowe lest happily he put forth hys hāde, and take also of the tree of lyfe, and ea-te, & lyue for euer. And the Lorde God sent them furth from the garden of Eden, to bryese the grounde that he was taken out of. And so he droue out man, & at the east syde of the garden of Eden, he set Cherubins, & the gly-sterynge flame of a shakynge swerde, to ke-pe the waye of the tre of lyfe.

The.iiij. Chapter.

Cain doth not onely kyll his righte brother Abel, but also dyspayeth: and is cursed. The generacion of Enoch: Methuselah: Tubal: Lamech: Seth and Enos.

Adā knewe heua his wife: who coceauynge, bare Cain, sayinge: I haue gotten a man of the Lorde. And the proceadyng furth, brought forth hys brother habel, and habel was a keeper of shepe.
But Cain was a tyller of the grounde. And in pcesse of dayes it came to passe, that Cain brought of the frute of the grounde an obla-cyon vnto the Lorde. Habel also brought of the fyrstlynge of hys shepe, and of the fat therof. And the Lorde had respect vnto * habel, & to hys oblacyon. But vnto Cain and to hys offryng he had no respect. For the whych cause Cain was excedynge wo-the, and hys countenance abated. And the Lorde sayde vnto Cain: Why art thou wo-the, & why is thy countenance abated? * yf thou do well, shalt there not be a promociō.
And yf thou dost not well, lyeth not thy syn ne in the doores? Vnto the also pertayneth the lust therof, and thou shalt haue dominio ouer it. And Cain spake vnto habel hys brother: (let vs go furth.)

And it fortunēd * when they were in the felde, Cain rose vp agaynst habel hys brother, and slue him. And the Lorde sayde vnto Cain: Where is habel thy brother? Whych sayd: I wote not: Am I my brothers keeper?
And he sayde: What hast thou done? The voyce of thy brothers bloude cryeth vnto me out of the grounde. And nowe art thou curs-sed from of the erth, whych hath opened hys mouth, to receaue thy brothers bloude from thy hande. If thou tyll the grounde, he shall not proceade to yelde vnto the hys strength.
Fugitpue, and vagabounde shalt thou be in the erth. And Cain sayde vnto the Lorde: Wyne * iniquite is more, then yf it maye be forguen. Beholde, thou hast cast me out this daye from the vpper face of the erth, and fro thy face shall I be hyd: Fugitpue also and a vagabounde shall I be in the erth. And it shall come to passe: euery one that fyndeth me, shall slaye me. And the Lorde sayde vnto him: * (it shall not be so) yee, but whosoever slayeth Cain, it shalbe auenged seven folde.

And the Lorde set a marke vpon Cain, lest any mā fyndynge him, shulde kyll hym.
And Cain wente out fro the presence of the Lorde, & dwelt in the lode of Noe eastward fro Eden. Cain also knewe his wife, whych coceaued & bare Enoch: & byldynge a cyte, he called the name of the same cyte after the name of hys sonne Enoch. Vnto the same Enoch was borne Irad. Irad beget Mea his byndel,